Employment Law and Tax Seminar

Sponsored by

 BNA International

Wednesday 21st September 2011

CLIG welcomes back Anne Fairpo, barrister at 13 Old Square Chambers, as our presenter on the topic of employment law and taxation. If you have ever wondered exactly what National Insurance is, how remuneration packages for corporate directors are structured, or why bankers are paid big bonuses rather than big salaries, then this is the seminar you should attend!

Anne will explain some basic tax concepts in the context of employment law to help the audience understand terminology like 'share incentive schemes' and 'taxable benefits', and how directors' tax issues can affect M&A deals. She will look at the types of transactions that tax and employment lawyers work together on, and what a difference their advice can make for clients.

This seminar will be followed by networking drinks, kindly sponsored by BNA International, one of the leading providers of cross-border tax information: www.bnai.com
